Translated from Geografiya i Khozyaistvo (USSR) 1963, no. 12, p. 67-71. (Abstract available)

The author argues for acceptance of the geographical environment as the basic object of study in geography. This environment is defined as nature that has undergone change as a result of man's activities. The author contends that some Soviet geographers still base their views on the now outmoded Stalinist definition of the geographical environment as the "environment surrounding man" or "external nature."
